SENATOR WEHRBEIN: It was your understanding, then, when they did get to the point that they needed funds, that there probably would be a bill introduced for construction specifically for this, and/or private donations and so forth, or a framework for that. Is that what you are envisioning?

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Yes, and, Senator, I think what could happen here is that we could raise all the money for the plantings, but what the state might eventually have to do is pay for the landscape architect to be on staff, and I think that we should probably do that anyway, whether we have this...this renewal of the old plan or not. But, for instance, some of the plants that are in the original landscaping plan might not be the very best that we could plant right now. We might want an updated version of that plant that's not as susceptible to Nebraska winters or whatever, that that could be part of the landscape architecture...architect purview, but also just seeing that these plant...plants are updated and kept up to date over the years. They've just fallen into neglect and, frankly, it's not at the top of anybody's priority.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Well, would that be in this bill ultimately to do that immediately, or is that still in the future, too?

SENATOR SCHIMEK: To do what immediately?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: The landscape architect, the position.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: No, that is not in this bill, and that I don't envision would come until later anyway.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Okay.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: I mean it would be good to have now but right now we really shouldn't be doing too much planning or rearranging of the landscape because too much of it is going to have to be torn up anyway.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Well, I have been one to support what we've done; the murals that we did a few years cost us additional money and was a long time coming. I am not adverse at all to having a long term plan for the capitol because it's going to
